Acceptance of Agenda.

Chairman Frady asked for Old Business Item 11 to be removed from the current agenda at Mr. Wimmer's request, and for the item to be placed on the Wednesday, February 2, 2011 agenda. The Board consented to the Chairman's request.

Commissioner Brown asked for an item to be placed under the Reports portion of the Agenda. Chairman Frady replied that Commissioner Brown's issue was determined not to be a report but rather a rebuttal, and that the rebuttal was not a part of the agenda. Commissioner Brown moved to leave his topic on the agenda under the Reports section. Commissioner McCarty seconded the motion. The motion failed in a 2-2-0 vote. PRESENTATION/RECOGNITION:

1. The County's auditing firm, Nichols, Cauley & Associates, LLC., will be presenting the results of the Fiscal Year 2010 audit to the Board of Commissioners.

Assistant Finance Director Toni Jo Howard introduced Mr. William Sammons, a partner with the County's auditing firm Nichols, Cauley & Associates, LLC. Mr. Sammons presented the results of the Fiscal Year 2010 audit to the Board. The Board took no action on this item.

PUBLIC COMMENT:

Chairman Frady reminded the audience that some unfortunate events occurred at the last Commissioners meeting during public comment, and he instructed all in attendance not to participate in name calling for either the staff, for individual Board members, or anyone else in the audience since the Board would not tolerate such actions

David Barlow: Mr. David Barlow, a resident of Tyrone, informed the Board that when he spoke at the January 1, 2011 meeting during Public Comment, he allowed his passion for Fayette County's future to get in the way of his professionalism. He acknowledged that his remarks about County Attorney Scott Bennett were inappropriate, and he apologized to Mr. Bennett and the Commissioners. He added that his zeal for the County's future is real, and that he will continue to strive to be an integral part of its success. Chairman Frady thanked Mr. Barlow for his remarks and agreed with Mr. Barlow about having zeal for Fayette County.

Donald Fowler: Mr. Donald Fowler, a resident of Fayetteville, spoke against the construction of the West Fayetteville Bypass which was recently renamed "Veterans Parkway". He stated that the bypass's new name is an insult to veterans throughout the county as it is the most controversial road in Fayette County's history. He said the bypass has caused heartaches and headaches for Fayette's residents, and that it causes the residents to have less trust in the government. He added that the bypass is viewed as unwanted spending of taxpayers' money without reasonable justification. He explained that Tillman Road was going to be bulldozed and that trees that are older than World War II veterans would be cut down, and that it was an insult to connect veterans to that unnecessary destruction. He concluded with remarks about the dangers at the intersection of Sandy Creek Road and the West Fayetteville Bypass by speaking about the stop sign that had been "wiped out" a number of times at that intersection.

Steve Smithfield: Mr. Steve Smithfield, a resident of Fayetteville, reminded the Board of his resolution to follow up on unanswered questions about open government. He noted that he did not receive an adequate answer from the County or Chairman Frady in response to an email sent to the Board earlier in January. Mr. Smithfield then read the email he sent to Chairman Frady and to the Board. He closed his remarks by saying there was an appearance, due to the lack of public records, that one person "directed the shifting of millions of taxpayer dollars", and he asked Chairman Frady to respond to the email and to "clear the air".

Bob Ross: Mr. Bob Ross, a resident of Peachtree City, thanked Commissioner Horgan for his comments in the Fayette Daily News, dated on January 22, 2011, concerning the possible reconsideration of Resolution No. 2010-22 which was passed on December 9, 2010. He then presented a letter with his comments about his concerns about the West Fayetteville Bypass to the Board members and he read his comments for the public record.

Ray Wyatt: Mr. Ray Wyatt, a resident of Peachtree City, spoke in opposition to the West Fayetteville Bypass. He stated that the 2004 SPLOST referendum passed with a narrow margin in 2004 when Fayette's economy was much better, and he said the narrow margin indicated that the SPLOST was fairly unpopular back in those days. He asked, based on his research, when the Board's focus moved from the East Fayetteville Bypass, to the West Fayetteville Bypass, and he hinted that the change began with the election of two commissioners. He added that the voters would never have voted for the bypasses if they knew that property would be confiscated. He suggested that the Board should meet in a retreat, decide to end the West Fayetteville Bypass, admit a mistake, and say "times are different". He concluded that he wanted five independent thinkers on the Board, and called for the Board to end its 3-2 voting. He concluded his remarks by asking for transparency from the government, for the government to do the right thing, and for the Commissioners to not assume they are elite and that the people are happy with them just because they won an election.

Ginga Smithfield: Mrs. Ginga Smithfield, a resident of Fayetteville, gave copies of the October 28, 2003 minutes of a joint meeting discussing the Transportation Plan Update to the Board. She then read comments regarding her findings, spoke in opposition to the West Fayetteville Bypass, and asked when the Board's priorities changed from the East Fayetteville Bypass to the West Fayetteville Bypass.

Carol Galimore: Ms. Carol Galimore, a resident of Fayetteville, informed the Board that she lives on Tillman Road, a quiet, gravel road that will be made into Phase II of the West Fayetteville Bypass. She spoke of her family's history in the vicinity of Tillman and Eastin Roads, about the quality of life she family and her neighbors enjoy, the sacrifices made to live on their land, and the wildlife in the area. She stated that all of that would be destroyed by construction of the West Fayetteville Bypass. She continued saying it was insulting to name the West Fayetteville Bypass "Veterans Parkway", and she told the Commissioners that address changes had already been sent to a financial company without her knowledge. Ms. Galimore explained that she and her neighbors do not appreciate being threatened by five Commissioners who were supposed to represent them, that it was uncomfortable but necessary to fight for their lives, wildlife and trees, and that the people are waking up and realizing that being complacent in Fayette County is no longer an option. She closed her remarks saying Fayette County's politicians must understand they have created a new environment of distrust and disgust with local government.

Betty Jo Morris: Mrs. Betty Jo Morris, a resident of Harp Road, spoke against the West Fayetteville Bypass. She told of how she and her husband searched throughout Fayette County looking for small acreage to which to build their home and raise their children. She recalled that in 1975 they found a 10-acre tract of land located on Redwine Road, and they cleared the land with swing blades. She said on Thanksgiving Day 1975, her family broke ground on the property, and they ate Thanksgiving dinner on planks. She told of how they moved to the property in 1976, and seven years later her husband became ill with Alzheimer's disease at age fifty. She said he was sick for 16 years, that for the last five years of his life he required around the clock assistance, and that he passed away 11 years ago. She added that during his last two years of life, her mother contracted Alzheimer's and was moved into their home where she died. Later, her daughter passed away with cancer. She told the Board that her land now has a small memorial garden to her husband, and a beautiful memory garden for her daughter. She said that she works hours on her land in organic gardens, that she raises her own vegetables, and that the wildlife in the area are her pets. She noted that her land also has one of the largest oak trees in the State of Georgia. She said that the Board may call the road "Veterans Parkway" but that the citizens knew it was the "Road to Nowhere". She concluded that she is now 74 years old and has lived on the land for 35 years.

Tom Halpin: Mr. Tom Halpin, a resident of Fayetteville, noted that of all the issues being presented he saw the main problem with the Commissioners was a lack of transparency concerning how issues are presented to the residents of Fayette County. He said the message received by the residents is "Just show up and we will see what is going on in our meetings", and he noted that is not the way to conduct county business. He said citizens need to know what is going to happen in the meetings, they need time to form opinions, and then have the ability to come and speak to the issues. He explained that certain topics have been voted on by the Board that had no input from the public and with no one able to talk about it, particularly the renaming of the West Fayetteville Bypass to "Veterans Parkway". He said this type of practice occurs again and again in Fayette County. He continued that if an emergency meeting needs to be called to accept a grant, then something is wrong in county operations since grants just do not happen. He then spoke about his opposition to the West Fayetteville Bypass, and about the repeated message that constructing it was the "best bang for the buck". He told the Board that he conducted his own research, and could not verify that statement since he could not find comparison documents for the East Fayetteville Bypass. He noted that finding information on the county's website is difficult since important documents are buried and a person would need to know where to look. He closed by reiterating his concern for the Board and county government to be more transparent.

David Hall: Mr. David Hall, a resident of Peachtree City, said it was obvious people in Fayette County are angry over various issues. He told the Board that government gets its authority from the American people. He spoke about the problems at the federal government as it is bankrupting the nation and destroying the quality of life of the common citizen. He continued that there are many problems in life around the world, and that the people have more than enough problems without millions of tax dollars in Fayette County being spent on the West Fayetteville Bypass. He pointed out that crime in Fayette County is increasing, cited the incident at the PeachMac store in Peachtree City, and asked if the West Fayetteville Bypass would extend to Union City where those criminals fled. He said the Board is not working the way it was designated to do, and that he was tired of the complete dismissal and disregard of the will of the American people. He closed saying he sees the following for the county if things continue as they are: 1) the commissioners will be peacefully replaced in upcoming elections or 2) the Commissioners will begin listening to the voters.

Denise Ogino: Ms. Denise Ogino, a resident of Fayetteville, said she had not planned to speak, but her heart would not let her keep silence. She told the Board that she had lived too long in Fayette County without getting involved in local politics, but she has finally decided to get involved after learning of some discussions from the commissioners that made it to the public. She said she is proud to have worked to remove the last two commissioners from office, and that she is watching all five commissioners. She hoped that the commissioners would work together to plan the best course of action for the people, and she thought if the Board would work together it could form a great team. She said it was sad to hear people laugh at the beginning of the meeting and for other people to walk out. She called on Chairman Frady to apologize to Commissioner Brown if in fact Commissioner Brown was correct. She called on Commissioner Brown to apologize to Chairman Frady if in fact Chairman Frady was correct. She then spoke to Chairman Frady, telling him that he had seemingly censored information to the citizens who have taken the time to come to the meetings. She said that she will not stay away from Commission meetings any longer since "there is much going on that needs to be taken care of". She said the citizens are taking notice, and hopefully they will reelect each Commissioner as long as they choose to work with the people. She asked for the beginning of this meeting to be well publicized so that others who cannot attend commission meetings will know what is going on.

Dennis Chase: Mr. Dennis Chase, a resident of Fayetteville, spoke to the Board and said he reviewed the Fayette County Land Use Plan. He pointed out that the Land Use Plan has goals and proposals to protect the county's natural areas, stream corridors, and green spaces. He continued that the West Fayetteville Bypass and the East Fayetteville Bypass were now under consideration, and that the West Bypass would disrupt Whitewater Creek and that the East Bypass would disrupt Morning Creek. He suggested that both bypasses could have alternatives that would completely avoid all of the natural areas thereby limiting the environmental impact, and that he was at a loss to understand why the County would violate its own Land Use Plan. He closed by saying he is a Vietnam veteran, that he spent a year in that country, and that he is offended that the West Fayetteville Bypass is now called "Veterans Parkway". He said if the Board felt the need to honor Fayette's veterans, he could assure it that a great number of veterans would get together and provide help in doing so. He said naming the West Fayetteville Bypass "Veterans Parkway" was one of the worst things the County could do for its veterans, and he asked the Board to reconsider that idea.
